

UND College of Business and Public Administration Ranks #13 in Nation for Entrepreneurship

(September 9, 2008) – From over 2,300 schools surveyed by Entrepreneur magazine and The Princeton Review, the University of North Dakota College of Business and Public Administration was distinguished as having one of the top 50 entrepreneurship programs. The University of North Dakota ranked number 13 in the undergraduate category of the survey.

The sixth annual ranking reveals the nation's Top 25 undergraduate and Top 25 graduate programs for entrepreneurship. UND's ranking can be seen at www.entrepreneur.com/topcolleges, along with information on overall trends found with social and environmental entrepreneurship, experiential learning, and entrepreneurship as a means of reaching out both internationally and locally.

The University of North Dakota College of Business and Public Administration was evaluated based on key criteria in the areas of academics and requirements, students and faculty, and outside-the-classroom experiences. Amy Cosper, VP/editor in chief at Entrepreneur, says "Each school that made the list demonstrates excellence in one or more areas—whether in regards to course offerings, the success of students post-graduation, sponsored mentorship programs, or other important factors. Schools that made the ranking are an excellent research starting point for prospective entrepreneurship students."

The joint efforts of The Princeton Review and Entrepreneur bring together The Princeton Review's renowned expertise in research and education with Entrepreneur's in-depth understanding of the challenges and opportunities facing entrepreneurs today.

The results of the survey, along with the analysis, appear in the October issue of Entrepreneur, which hits newsstands on September 23rd. Additional information on each school can be found at www.entrepreneur.com/topcolleges.
